SONG. No, not when sunbeams gaily shine, And garish day shows bright, Nor yet when stars look forth undimmed Through calm and pleasant night;

Their sweets from hill and lea, Not then will I seek thee.

My love for thee needs not the sun, Like July's gaudy flow'rs ; its emblem is the snow-drop pure

That lives through Winter's show'rs. Thy sunny smile shall be;

If thine look bright on me. What time the beavens are tempest-rent

When skies are black and stars are hid, When shrillest shricks the sea-bird wild,

When whitest foams the sea, That night I 'li come to thee.

No Summer woods's heart bear 1-

When Fate's dark shades descend.

You scarce may hope to see— When false ones flinch before the storm, Then, dearest, look for me!
